AMUSEMENTS.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC -"LINDA." Colonel Mapleson must have thought that he was, indeed, in command of Her Majesty's Invalid Corps when he called the roll yesterday at the Academy of Music. Mile. Marimon, Mile. Valleria, Signor Cam. mini and Signor Del Puente were on the retired list, and Herr Behrens and others of the company were coughing suspiciously. Dr. Mott was sum. moned by Colonel Mapleson. Dr. Mott made the usual examination and reported to Colonel Mapleson. They both looked down in the mouth-the Doctor to make the necessary examination, the Colonel on hearing the report—" 'La Sonnambula, could not be sung; Signori Campanini and Del Puente were ill, Mile. Marimon could not the fatigue of a rehearsal with other artists and was were she to attempt it, &c., &c., &c., and much as she regretted it, &c., &c., &c. It was at once decided to sing "Linda," with Runcio as Carlo, Galassi (Old Reliable) as Autonio, Behrens as the Prefetto and Lablache as Picrotto. Who would plunteer to sing Linda? Neither Mme. Ambre nor Miss Cary were available—the cast as thus far ar-wolunteer to sing Linda? Neither aime, ander averaged had pretty much exhausted the able bodied members of the company—in fact no one was left, but the Colonel and Signor Arditi, but matters had not gone so far as looking there for a volunteer when Allie. Valleria said that sick or well she was ready. The necessary posters were "nung out on the outer wall," the "Sonnambula" scores were shelved, the "Linda" music was brought out and the Colonel took his place in the Academy lobby, armed with a well phrased extuse and the orthodox medical certificate ready to meet his disappointed patrons.

The management certainly did all in their power under the circumstances, in offering to exchange purchased seats, or refund the money paid for them (a very large sum was returned), and those whe were disappointed should remember that the management's loss is proportionately greater, and that it is so serious an injury to the season, that were it possible to prevent a postponement it is not to be supposed that its occurrence would be permitted.

Allle, Valleria's indisposition did not allow of the full scord being sung, and many and important changes were made in the opera to save her voice. Sie seemed comparatively fresh throughout in consequence of the shortening of several scenes, and the L'Incontro wait, which she sang in place of the final aria, rang out quite full and clear in many pasages.

final aris, rang out quite full and clear in many passages.

Signor Runcio, singing under circumstances hardly calculated to show him to advantage, did remarkably well, and those faults of voice and method which existed here and there throughout his performance may be forgiven and forgotten, for the double reason that he was taking the part at short notice and that the faults were not so serious as have been before noticed in his singing.

Signor Galassi's Antonio was the same finished and admirable piece of work that he has before shown in this opera, and Herr Behrens, who was, like Mile. Valleria, singing under difficulties, managed to get through the score most creditably.

Accepting the excuses offered, the management as well as the public are to be condoled with, as both were seriously disappointed; but for the sake of all parties concerned it is to be hoped that artists, not excuses, librettoe, not medical certificates, will await the patrons of the opera on Freday evening, for house, seems still to hold an interest for the public, and no wonder, for it is a sprightly, rollicking piece. The story of the farce is as follows :- Fanny, he niece of Rollman, who is proprietor of the stage coach line between Müncheberg and Berlin, falls in love with one of the postilions and is about to marry him, when Bitterling appears on the scene, engages her to sing in a theatre and takes her away im. Some time elapses between the first an second acts, how long is not stated, but sufficient, however, for Fanny to have made her reputation as an opera singer. The time is sufficient, also, for Bitterling to have declined from his high estate of impresario and for the obliging uncle of Fanny's lover to shuffle off this mortal coil and leave his nephew 80,000 thalers. All these things having happened, the insolvent impresario and the affluent whip meet in a Berlin cafe and mutual recognitions ensue. The young man is about to vent his ire upon the old gentleman, but relents, and the two agree to go to a masked ball to be given by the now famous prima donna. They go, and the lover, who is disguised, discovers that still Fanny loves him. He elected to go disguised for the reason that he wished to assure himself that Fanny, if she did love him, did not love him for his recently acquired 80,000 thalers. In order to pay her lover off in kind for having made her betray her love, Fanny, after it was arranged that she should go back to Müncheberg to be married, arrives there disguised as an an opera singer. The time is sufficient, also, for was arranged that she should go take to atunencherg to be married, arrives there disguised as an English tourist, and in an artful way ascertains that in truth the position loves her. She reveals herself, and great joy ensues in Müncheberg. During the progress of the farce several taking songs, duets and choruses are introduced.

The audience which gathered at Booth's last night evidently was in search of morecaux of grand opera, for half of them deferred their entrance until about the end of the first fragment on the programme. Untortunately for them, however, the continuation of M. Jouard's indisposition compelled the withdrawal of "Faust" and the substitution of the most spirited act of that most unspiritual opera, "La Vie Parisienne," the performance opening with the first act of "Les Brigands." The results were a very demonstrative stage and undemonstrative house, except while the act from "Mignon" was being sung. In this last named selection Capoul sang with fine feeling and more than his usual force, the effect of his work being enhanced by comparison with that demanded in the ruffianly part of Falsacappa, in "Les Brigands." Paola-Marié and Angèle were equal to their respective parts, which is a great deal to say when the requirements of "La Vie Parisienne" are considered. In Mignon the first named lady strengthened the favorable impression she made during her first performance of the part soveral nights ago. the end of the first fragment on the programme,

FINE ARTS.

MUNKACST TAKES AMERICAN PUPILS.

We learn by a letter from an American art studen in Paris that Michael Munkacsy, the great Hungarian painter, has consented to become the master seven Americans now studying there-namely. Messrs. Dannat, Shields, Breakespeare, Turner, Feodor Encke, Weldon and Harper. They have take a large studio and fitted it up for a school in the same avenue with and some five doors from Munkacay's, and are hard at work under his supervision. Dannat some weeks ago called on the master and told him that he represented a small party of Americans who were desirous of becoming his pupils, and asked if there was any possibility of his consenting to criticise their work. Munkacsy replied that he had often been requested to take a school before, but had always requested. He was only recently asked to become professor of the Academy at Weimar. He, however, seemed to think favorably of the proposition, but asked to see the students and their work before giving an answer. Five of the band thereupon visited him, with specimens of each man's sketches and studies, and the painter finally agreed to become their master. Dannat, formerly a student of Duvencek in Munich, was at the time in Carolus Duran's ateller; Shields left the Ecole des Beaux Arts, where he stood sixth in Gerome's class, and Turner and Breakospeare left the studio of J. P. Laurens. The chief mover in the whole affair was Mr. Dannat. a large studio and fitted it up for a school

HOME NEWS AND NOTES.

Ames Van Wart, the sculptor, has on exhibition in Avery's gallery a little marble bust of a pretty young American girl, "Ready for the Opera," and clad in a nubia and cloak. The head is quite charm-ing in expression and nicely modelled. The hair, falling down over the forehead, is well managed. Ing in expression and nicely modelled. The high problems of the head covering and the embroidered cloak lacks freedom and is conventional.

Among the illustrations worthy of mention in the bright and attractive Christmas number of Saint Nicholas are the frontispiece, well engraved though not with much force, by G. Kruell, after a picture by Knaus; Mary Hallock Foote's drawing to the poem. "The Knight and the Page;" Dielman's to verses, "The Four Sunbeams;" Bensell's to the story, "Paul and the Goblin;" Taber's "An' They Wore Them?" in "Among the Lakes;" Kelly's clever full page of Belierophon on Pegasus; Lungren's numerous studies of "Telegraph Boys," and the cuts illustrating the story of Thorwaldsen.

The illustrated catalogue of the Sherwood-Hart collection contains reproductions of pen and ink drawings of forty of the pictures. The majority of the drawings were made by James D. Smillie. It. Swain Gifford furnished an admirable one of his, "Near the Landing Piace." Among the best are those after works by Meissonier, F. Barnard, James M. MAN AND WIFE ARRESTED.

A BROOKLYN COUPLE CHARGED WITH SHOP LIFTING AND SNEAR THIEVING.

George White and his wife; Mary White, age about thirty years each, were arraigned before Justice Courtney in the Third District Court, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon, on a charge of shop-lifting. It was charged during a partial investiga-tion that the accused had been operating in a disnonest manner at the expense of various storekeepers and housekeepers for several months past. No le-s than thirty-five pawn tickets keepers and housekeepers for several months past. No le-s than thirty-five pawn tickets suspected to represent stolen articles, amounting in the aggregate to the value of upward of $1,000, were found on their premises. In August last a Mrs. Hoptins, then residing at No. 203 Adelphi street, reported to Captain Wilmarth, of the Fourth precinct, that her house had been broken into by burglars and had been robbed of certain articles. Detective Shaughnessey, who was sent to investigate the robbery, was satisfied that the sidelight near the basement door, by which latter the thieves were supposed to have effected an entrance, had been broken from the inside. Mrs. Hopkins had in her employ at the time the man and woman who are now under arrest; but she had every confidence in their honesty. The detective, however, was satisfied that they were guilty of the robbery, though no prosecution was then attempted. Mr. H. Speildoch, who is proprietor of a dry goods store on Fulton avenue, in November last was robbed of several pieces of fannel by a female shoplifter, whose description he gave Detective Shaughnessey. The officer found that it accorded with the description of Mary White. On Monday last the stolen fiannel was found in a pawn shop an Brooklyn and the material was recovered by Mr. Speildoch. Search was made for the Whites in Franklin avenue yesterday by the detective named. While the search was being made Policeman Lyons, of the Fourth precinct, accidentally discovered thirty-five pawn tickets secreted under the flooring of a barn adjoining his residence. He took the tickets to the station house. The Whites were eventually found at No. 68% Franklin avenue in a building adjoining the barn where Officer Lyons got the pawn tickets. Man and wife were then arrested. The woman was committed to Baymond Street Jail and the man was admitted to ball to await examination. A wagon load of property was subsequently removed by the police from various pawn shops.

DURYEA'S ZOUAVES.

A meeting of the survivors of the Fifth regiment, New York Volunteers, known as Duryea's Zouaves, was held last night in the second company's room in the Seventh Regiment Armory. General Duryes was in the chair, and about one hundred and twenty, five veterans were present. It was resolved that hereatter the association should meet every month, and that members should wear a badge in the shape of a Maltese cross, almost identical with those word by the Fifth army corps. Twelve new members signed the roll last night. Generals Davica, Kilpatrick, Sykes, Warren, Manield Davices and McClennan were elected honorary members. was held last night in the second company's room

TWELFTH REGIMENT REUNION.

The first of the fifth season of the social reunions of the Twelfth regiment, N.G.S.N.Y., Colonel Cruger, occurred last night at the armory, Broadway and Forty-fifth street. There were some two hundred couple present on the floor, who "tripped it upon the light fantastic toe" until an early hour this morning. The music was furnished by Dodworth's Tweifth Regiment Band. These reunions are altogether of a social and private character, being arranged for the entertainment almost exclusively of the members of the regiment and their friends. Last night's reunion was a most enjoyable affair throughout, especial pains having been taken by the committee—consisting of Quartermaster R. A. Riker, Captain W. C. Reddy and Lieutenant G. W. Griffiths—to make it surpass all its predecessors. The order of dancing embraced the Lanciers, waltzes, quadrilles, gallops, polkas, Caledonians, with the usual promenades and nullitary marches—sixteen in all. The armory hall was tastefully decorated for the occasion.

POLITICIANS DISTURBED.

Republican politicians in Brooklyn are all agog with excitement over a rumor that Jacob Worth is about to resign his position as City Works Commis-sioner in view of the passage of a bill early in the session of the incoming Legislature providing for single headed commissions. Mr. Worth's friends say that he is a candidate for a State appointment under Governor-elect Cornell.

MOTHER JEROME RE-ELECTED

The result of the election for Mother Superior of the Sisters of Charity leaves the present incumbent, Mother Jerome, in office for the next two years. The importance of the position is apparent when it is known that the Order numbers nearly one thousand members subject to the Mother House at Mount St. Vincent.
